Family Tree - Information Card 2

The snow monkeys live in troops. Female snow monkeys spend their whole lives in their original troop. Most male snow monkeys move from one troop to another.

The troop is usually formed around a group of closely related females which may contain mothers, daughters, grandmothers, granddaughters, aunts, nieces, female cousins and sisters.

The female boss of the troop (the alpha female) will pass on the rank to their oldest daughter. The male boss of the troop (the alpha male) will stay in his position for as long as the troop wants him to. One day he will lose his position. The males do not pass on the rank to their sons.
